Biographical information
Colonel Robert J. Chester, also known as Robert I. Chester, was born in Carlisle, Pennsylvania, on July 31, 1793. His family moved to Jonesboro, Tennessee when he was a young man where his father, William P. Chester, was the family doctor of John Sevier and an innkeeper in the town. An adult Robert Chester made his home in Jackson, Tennessee in the western part of the state. Despite his middle name being Johnson, Robert’s middle initial, “J” was often mistaken for an “I” and he is known as both Robert I. Chester and Robert J. Chester. Robert Chester served in the War of 1812, and received the rank of Colonel under General Sam Houston in the war of Texas independence. Robert served as a United States Marshal, was a Tennessee Democrat, served in the State Legislature of Tennessee, and was a celebrated Mason. His first wife, Elizabeth Hays, was the niece of Andrew Jackson. They had seven children: Mary Jane Chester, John Chester, Robert Hays Chester, Martha Butler Chester, William Chester, Andrew Jackson
Chester, and Samuel Hays Chester.

Elizabeth Chester died in 1841 and Robert remarried in 1855 to widow, Jane P. Donelson, née Royster. Robert died on January 14, 1892 at the age of 98 in Jackson, Tennessee. He is buried locally, at Riverside Cemetery.

Scope and contents
The Chester family papers are comprised primarily of correspondence between Mary Jane Chester and members of her family based in Jackson, Tennessee. The correspondence focuses on local and school events at the Columbia Female Institute, local and national politics, a reception for Andrew Jackson, family health and illness, and educational plans for other members of the Chester family. Three letters in the collection date to 1836 and cover Robert J. Chester’s experiences in Texas. Additionally, detailed genealogical records are included in this collection. Documents related to the Chester family in Jonesborough, Tennessee and Pennsylvania are part of the collection along with articles that detail biographical information about Robert J. Chester.

For additional genealogical information about the Chester family see: MS 428, Adams, Battle, Cooper, and Donelson family papers.
